Day

Don Day was recognized as an OASIS Distinguished Contributor [2] in 2011. He has innovated with enterprise-level, markup-based publishing tools for over 25 years, designing SGML and XML authoring tools and solutions for use by IBM’s Information Development community. He drove the contribution by IBM of the SourceForge-based DITA Open Toolkit, and convened the formation of the OASIS Darwin Information Typing Architecture (DITA) Technical Committee [3], which he co-chaired until 2014. In between exploring new solutions and opportunities for DITA uptake, Don writes and consults about DITA and the future of cloud-based publishing.
